

Autobag® Reduces Downtime for Freudenberg-NOK

Freudenberg-NOK is a co-operative between two companies-one German and the other Japanese. Located in Milan, OH, they manufacture seals, gaskets and gasket kits. The company is a supplier to the automotive after-market as well as a supplier of custom packaged product to the big three.

Freudenberg-NOK management recognizes the value of good quality and reliable equipment to minimize downtime and keep them competitive in a very tough business climate.

Autobag has been a long time supplier to Freudenberg-NOK. Due to the special needs of this company, Autobag customized a standard HS-100 Excel™ to work with existing processing equipment.

Additionally, the customization minimized the ergonomic motion of the operator. Autobag also supplies the bags that are custom engineered to run on this equipment. The system, comprised of the equipment, bags and support services, keep costly downtime to a minimum.

Larry Risner, Production Supervisor said, "The value that Autobag adds to our packaging is that we don't have downtime due to bad bags, which justifies the price. Autobag bags seal well and its equipment runs very well. If you pay for a quality product and don't have downtime, it actually pays for itself in the long run."

Larry Risner concludes this way. "I would recommend Autobag to anybody due to their service level and the quality of their equipment and bags. They always come through. They make sure that everything is right."
